In recognition of the important contributions women have made to the economic, social and cultural development of nations, and to promote full equality between men and women, the United Nations has proclaimed 1975 International Women's Year.

In Ontario, International Women's Year will be marked by a series of special activities and events to create further public awareness of the new roles being assumed by women on the move.

Highlights of programs and events sponsored by the Ontario Government during International Women's Year 1975.

A Premier's meeting with Management and Labour with a follow-up program to promote and encourage equal employment opportunities for women on the move.

Recognition of outstanding women in the province who have led the way for women on the move.

Grants to organizations for projects designed to improve the status of women on the move.

Information units staffed by students to provide information about Ontario Government programs which relate to the needs of women on the move.

Government ministries and Crown agencies to develop innovative projects for women on the move.

Woman on the move— Who is she?

She is a valued member of the work force with her eye on career opportunities.

She is a student planning a career based on what she really wants to do, rather than on what girls are expected to do.

She has educational credentials which qualify her for a job in her chosen field or professional discipline.

She is a volunteer actively engaged in making her community a better place to live.

She is a full-time homemaker raising a growing family.

She is planning to re-enter the labour force and is taking a refresher course to prepare herself for a job.

For these women and others in Ontario the equal opportunity door is opening wider—because they have proven they have an important contribution to make to all fields of endeavour.
